Korean Cultural Awareness Group: Established 1992

KCAG Statement

The Korean Cultural Awareness Group (KCAG) was founded by a number of concerned Korean students who felt that UCSB needed an organization in which students have an opportunity to learn the Korean culture by learning Korean traditional instruments, dances, songs, and its history. The purpose of KCAG are, to provide an opportunity to experience the Korean culture to student and the Santa Barbara community, to study history, culture, and to promote activities that enhance the Korean cultural awareness on campus. KCAG consists of two sub groups, which are Poong-Mul group (learn and play Korean traditional percussion drums: Kwaggari, Jing, Jangu and Buk) and Discussion group (study and discuss Korean history as well as current issues).

What is Ji Shin Bal Ki?

Ji Shin Bal Ki, "stepping on the Spirit of the Earth," is a traditional folk festival celebrating the beginning of the Lunar New Year. In historical aspect, the folk-drummers traveled through the village and visited individual houses in order to ward off the evil spirits, wishing good luck, harmony, and peace. In return, the villagers welcomed them with treats and refreshments. In the evening, everyone gathered at the "ma-dang" (center of the village) and celebrated the New Year with games, food, and music. This intangible Korean asset transcends to Los Angeles 18 years ago and continues to impact the Korean American community and surrounding cultures. The Ji Shin Bal Ki festival is a way for 1st generation Korean Americans to reminisce in the traditions of their homeland, and provides 2nd generation Korean Americans an opportunity to re-discover their roots. Ji Shin Bal Ki bridges the different generations and unifies the cultures that make up our vibrant community.

Donations...

On Valentine's Day on February 14th, we will donate portions of donation from 2009 Ji Shin Bal Ki to the community who are having hard time paying utility bills such as gas, electric, and water. We will announce this program to the population through media, local community and church network.

Los Curanderos of UCSB 2007
"Curando Nuestras Comunidades – Healing Our Communities"
February 28th 2009

A. Summary of Events

The Los Curanderos annual conference will begin at approximately 9:00 a.m. with the arrival of several students from within and outside the area. After everyone is seated there will be an opening keynote speaker who will introduce the group along with our goals and ultimately set the mood for the rest of the day. Immediately following this, there will be a number of hour-long workshops that serve as the core of our conference. The workshops will take place in one of the following rooms: LSB 1001, LSB 1101, GIRV 1106, GIRV 1112, or GIRV 1115. These educational workshops are composed of the application process for a 4-year university and Medical School, test-taking strategies, requirements, and other pertinent information. Aside from this, we will also be conducting workshops that stress the importance of cultural awareness and the realization of a universal healthcare system. In addition to this, we will also have the participation of several health care professionals from various fields who will serve as speakers in individual workshops. Some of these health care professionals who will be invited include nurses, pharmacists, doctors, optometrists, dentists, paramedics, and health care technicians. Current medical students will be invited to perform a workshop for the invited college audience. Lunch will be provided and there will be a place set for tabling where students will be encouraged to begin networking. During lunchtime there will be music to allow the students to relax and to further continue socializing. The day will end with a small theatrical performance by the members of Los Curanderos that will include entertaining acts and the closing of the conference with a skit containing a positive message for all to leave with. The conference will end at approximately 4:00 p.m.

B. Primary Objectives

Our main goal is to provide the students with the information needed to pursue a higher education and a career in the health field. We hope to make low-income and minority students aware of the possibilities available to them along with motivating them so they may achieve their goals. We also hope to provide answers and advice to students who feel lost on their path of education. It is in this way we plan to rid them of their insecurity and reach as many students as we can so that they may pursue a better future for themselves and the community. In order to accomplish this we select our speakers carefully so that we are able to provide the best possible motivation for the students we plan on serving.

C. Targeted Audience

Similar to past years, we will continue outreaching to students from surrounding high schools along with those outside the area. We will continue aiming our reach to those who come from under-represented or disadvantaged backgrounds who carry a desire to pursue a career in the healthcare field. Along with the high school audience we plan to have a smaller group of undergraduates from surrounding community colleges as well as UCSB. We estimate an attendance of 100 students, which is based off the attendance of previous conferences.

D. Long-Term Benefits of the Event

As the minority population increases in the U.S. so does the need for culturally competent and sensitive healthcare providers. Furthermore, it is very important and crucial that we encourage the students of diverse backgrounds to explore the many fields that are offered within the health field. There is a huge demand for advocates in the health field to represent low-income families who may not be able to communicate to some people working in the health care field because of language barriers. It is in this way that we plan on educating the students that we outreach to. The message that we plan to give them is to grow up humble and reach out in return to the poor communities that a lot of us, members of Los Curanderos, came from as well. We want to empower and encourage local students to live up to their potential and become health care professionals who will be sensitive to the needs of a diverse population.

E. Academic Preparation

Professionals such as medical doctors, college advisors, and current UCSB students will give each high school student advice on how they overcame certain obstacles. The conference will also provide students with workshops that will assist them with their academics (i.e. time managements, enhancing study skills, effective exam preparation, etc.) We aim to instill motivation in each student through our academic workshops so that they will have the drive needed to accomplish their goals. We will show them the door, but it is ultimately up to them to decide whether or not they decide to open and pass through it.

F. Faculty/Professional Involvement

The role that faculty and professionals play during our conference is the most important element since it provides hope to students and a role model that they may look up to during their path to success. The faculty/professionals that participate are to provide each student with their wisdom and expertise in relation to their field through speeches and workshops. It is in this way that students will be motivated and inspired to take risks and reach for their goals instead of avoiding their dreams because of fear, insecurities, lack of support or whatever the reason might be. Students can either succeed or fail on the lengthy path of education and we plan, with the aid of our guests, to help them succeed in reaching their desired end.

G. Fundraising Efforts

Most of the funds that we currently have available have come from membership dues that we have implemented this year due to the lack of funds from previous years. Although these dues do help, they do not provide a sufficient amount of money to use for larger expenditures. In the past we have not been so successful with our fundraising efforts, which includes selling food independently and in conjunction with restaurants in Isla Vista. As a result of this, we have been thinking of other ways to raise money such as a bike wash or by participating in paid beach cleanups through Coastal Fund. Another plan that we have is to send out letters to UCSB alumni who were part of Los Curanderos and ask if they are willing to contribute to the conference with a donation.

H. Promotion and Publicity Plans

Our plan to gain publicity will consist of personally contacting local high schools by doing presentations to encourage the students to attend our conference. We plan on recruiting high school students from some high schools in the Oxnard area. In addition, we will publicize the event in community colleges in the Ventura county area along with Santa Barbara. Although our main focus will be on advertising at high schools and community colleges, we will also advertise with fliers on the UCSB campus.

I. Measure of success

Los Curanderos has only been getting bigger and better with time. With each year the group becomes more useful to new members and the success of Los Curanderos members is clearly seen in the accomplishment of their goals in becoming healthcare professionals. The success of the conference has been achieved by paying close attention to the questionnaire and suggestions of our participants. We will continue asking each person to briefly describe their experience and input anything they may want to say regarding the conference. We have received a tremendous amount of feedback in the past and anticipate more improvement in the years to come.

We have three Collegiate Invitational Competitions this spring two in February and the big one in late March. We would use this money to register our team in the competition and provide room and board in Anaheim for two nights. We love to represent UCSB at these national competitions and we compete with other collegiate teams from all over the country. In the past we have placed 5th and 4th out of around twelve teams, and our program is improving. We have worked so hard this year and would love to be able to show off UCSB's Spirit and demonstrate what the UCSB cheerleading program is all about!! Thank You

This money has been used for other cheer events along the year.

Event Date and Time: Saturday March 7, 2009, 7:30am - 5:00pm

Name of Event: Science and Technology Day

Event Location: University of California at Santa Barbara, Campbell Hall area, Robertson Gym area, and many campus classrooms

Summary of proposed project:

Los Ingenieros is the student chapter of the Society of Hispanic Professional Engineers (SHPE), and serves students studying in science, technology, engineering, and mathematics fields. Los Ingenieros (LI), with support from the National Society of Black Engineers (NSBE), is planning the tenth annual Science and Technology Day (S&T), in conjunction with Mathematics, Engineering, Science Achievement (MESA) Day, on Saturday, March 7, 2009.

Science and Technology / MESA Day is designed to bring underrepresented pre-college junior high, middle school, high school, community college, and families of students from neighboring and Partnership schools (with low-college-going rates) to UCSB for a full day of varied, interactive workshops, demonstrations, tours, inspirational presentations about academic preparation for college and career paths in science, technology, engineering and math (STEM). In addition to exposing pre-college students to the opportunities of STEM, we inspire students about fields that have, in the past, been obscure and typically labeled "unrealistic" for underrepresented students. All the students we are targeting have some academic hurdles to overcome, whether the hurdles are lack of college information, financial support, role models, or related appropriate resources. At the end of the day, we want the students to leave UCSB with these ideas: college is a reachable goal, exciting and well-paying careers are achievable, and UCSB is an ideal campus for academically prepared students.

S&T Day includes greeting and encouragement from a UCSB leader such as Chancellor Henry Yang, Vice Chancellor Gene Lucas, Dean of the College of Engineering Matthew Tirrell, and/or Associate Dean of Undergraduate Studies in Engineering Glenn Beltz. Most of the day offers inquiry-based workshops and activities sponsored by engineering, chemistry, physics, and biology departments. A significant motivational feature is the involvement, introduction, and presentation by UCSB math, science, and engineering students, and allied student leaders and representatives. Particularly important role models of leadership, scholarship, and community involvement are those UCSB students who graduated from the partnership schools.

The MESA Engineering Program conducts math, science and engineering competitions for all students. Traditionally, these competitions were for MESA students exclusively, but this year we plan to open mini-competitions and demonstrations to all students in the target population. Additionally, Los Ingenieros and MESA will invite other campus programs and organizations, such as EAOP, Upward Bound, EOP, and University Admissions to present and provide information about college pathways, financial aid, and student life. It is our goal that S&T Day will help open the eyes of these students, parents, siblings, friends, and involved faculty to the fact that math, science and engineering fields are possible, particularly here at UCSB.

S&T/MESA Day Agenda (Proposed)

7:30 - 8:30am	Arrival, Registration, Breakfast Snack
8:30 - 9:45am	Opening Ceremonies, Welcoming Speakers, Overview
10:00 - 3:00pm	MESA Math, Science, and Engineering Competitions
10:00 - 11:15am	Admissions Workshop
10:00 - 11:15am	Parents preparation for college workshops (Bilingual)
11:00 - 12:15pm	S&T Track I Workshop
12:30 - 1:30pm	Lunch, Outdoor Demonstrations & Entertainment
1:45 - 3:00pm	S&T Track II Workshop
3:15 - 5:00pm	Motivational Speakers, presentation by UCSB students, raffle, Awards, closing ceremony

Our organization's primary objectives in undertaking this project - Why this project is important:

Los Ingenieros' primary objectives for Science and Technology Day are to:

- 1) Increase the number of eligible students who apply for admission to UCSB from the local underrepresented student pool.
- 2) Introduce opportunities for higher education and stimulating careers that STEM studies allow.
- 3) Provide encouraging and academically achieving role models through UCSB students and alumni.
- 4) Expose students to exciting approaches to learning about STEM fields.
- 5) Provide insights and strategies for pre-college students to pursue a STEM career, and the required education and baccalaureate (or higher) degree.

- 6) Encourage families of underrepresented students to help them prepare for and pursue university degrees, especially in STEM studies and careers.
- 7) Demonstrate how STEM disciplines play an important role in both our everyday lives and the future. Introduce underrepresented students to UCSB academic preparation programs at their schools and college experience opportunities, such as MESA, EAOP, Summer Research, Johns Hopkins Summer Program

Our targeted audience and projected number of participants:

Our target audience consists of pre-college junior high, middle school, high school, and community college students, especially underrepresented students such as Native Americans, African Americans, and Hispanics from over 22 schools in Santa Barbara and Lompoc in Santa Barbara County, as well as from the Highway 126 "Corridor" and Ventura and Oxnard schools in Ventura County. Within these counties, all pre-college and community college students are invited and encouraged to come. We anticipate that approximately 1,000 people will participate, including pre-college students, family members, and teachers, in addition to UCSB students, faculty, and staff.

Benefits from S&T Day:

The beneficiaries of this S&T Day event consist of two main groups of people: those who are currently outside the UCSB campus, and those within the UCSB campus. S&T Day brings these groups of people together in an effective and inspiring manner. As formerly underrepresented students, with support from their advocates, welcome potential students and show-case UCSB's prominence in the STEM fields, S&T Day becomes a dramatic demonstration of inclusion.

Of people outside the UCSB campus, those benefiting the most are the visiting pre-college students. On the day of the event, these students attend and participate in two or three workshops related to science, math, and preparing for college. Sample titles of these workshops are Fun with Chemistry, Alice computer programming, Four Eyes, and Preparing for College. Academic preparation and admission to higher education are covered in presentations about admissions, financial aid, and student life opportunities. UCSB students and faculty, plus UCSB and MESA alumni and STEM professionals conduct the workshops, serving as models and supporters of the pre-college participants. Additionally, parents, younger siblings, school faculty, professionals (and alumni), and community members all benefit from the information shared, and from the exposure to the UCSB campus, information, and hospitality. Everyone involved benefits from the inspiration of underrepresented students achieving a higher education, and reaching out to more potential UCSB graduates.

For students involved in the MESA Schools Program at their school, they also get to participate in project competitions, in which the top-scoring teams receive recognition and a prize. The teams work on projects that may, for example, require them to grow a crystal and analyze lab results, or build a bridge made solely of balsa wood that may be able to carry up to many, many times its own weight. Sample titles of such competitions are Trebuchet, Balsawood & Craftstick Bridges, Packaged Egg Drop, and Team Math Quest. By participating in the competitions, students are exposed to learning about a scientific or mathematical topic, understanding concepts related to that topic, and, finally, applying that understanding to create something tangible or practical. Participating students will be exposed to Imagination Gateways, a FOG-funded project and demonstration that involves applied STEM skills and engaging college access exercises.

Within the UCSB campus community, those benefiting the most are the student members of the S&T Day Planning Committee, sponsors of the event, and the many student volunteers (from many campus organizations). Because the members of the S&T committee participate in most aspects of the planning process of the event, they are able to gain valuable organizational and professional experience, to assume leadership, and to share teamwork. Prior to the day of the event, these members participate in developing ideas for the theme of the event, researching funding options, arranging for sufficient funding, gathering sufficient and appropriate volunteers, assisting in the reservation of rooms and a welcoming venue, aiding in the design of the t-shirts for visiting students, and assuming planning responsibility for major and minor expenses (such as for transportation, a guest speaker, and meals). On the day of the event, these members participate in setting up all stations (such as for breakfast, lunch, workshops, welcoming and closing ceremonies), regulating the previously-mentioned stations, judging many of the MESA competitions, and in any post-event cleaning. In addition to gaining crucial experience in planning for an event of a large magnitude, the UCSB students get to play the part of role models who are actively involved on the campus, and this is significant to the visiting students.

Faculty and professional involvement in our program:

Faculty, staff, and professional involvement play a very significant role for S&T Day. During the opening ceremony of the event, faculty members, as well as staff from the Engineering Enrichment Center (in the College of Engineering), are introduced and invited to deliver an opening message to the students. Faculty and staff have previously included Chancellor Yang, Executive Vice-Chancellor (and Engineering faculty) Gene Lucas, Dean Tirrell of the College of Engineering, and Robert Cota and Phyllis Brady who direct the Engineering Enrichment Center.

Welcoming and Motivational Speakers have included Dr. Evelyn Hu (Scientific Director of California Nanosystems Institute) ; Dr. Leroy Chaio, (Astronaut and UCSB alumnus); Dr. Jason Raley (Faculty in Graduate School of Education); and Grace Galvan (professional Engineer). Throughout the day, professional and academic involvement is very apparent because all workshops are either presented or directed by faculty (e.g., Dr. VanKoppen, Dr. Dottie Pak, Dr. Diana Franklin, Dr. Gerardo Aldana), current graduate students, post-docs, and alumni. Professionals have included engineers, chemists, physicians, geologists, educators, physicists, nano-science experts, and Los Ingenieros and NSBE alumni. Staff involvement and supervision is present from the beginning of planning, to the actual execution, and follow-up assessment and contact with schools and students. The Engineering Enrichment Center and MESA staff is primary in this staff support, and staff from the College of Engineering, Academic Preparation, Admissions, and EOP offer support on S&T Day.

Fundraising efforts undertaken by our group to help support S&T Day:

For the past several years, Los Ingenieros, with the assistance of the Engineering Enrichment Center staff, has supplemented the S&T Day funds by soliciting UCSB Student-Initiated Outreach Program (SIOP). Based upon our success in drawing pre-college students in large numbers, involving large numbers of UCSB student volunteers, and making significant connections between pre-college students and their families with the UCSB campus community and alumni, SIOP has agreed to fund $11,300 which will only cover part of Transportation and food.

Monetary and equipment contributions from professional organizations (e.g., Society of Hispanic Professional Engineers – SHPE), local companies (e.g., Raytheon), and alumni have been solicited. Professional organizations, local companies, and campus organizations, faculty, and staff normally provide non-monetary, in-kind support (e.g., volunteers, outreach to school groups, program printing, and promotional giveaways).

While not giving actual monetary funds, Los Ingenieros provides ongoing in-kind support through valuable academic preparation and outreach services to students throughout the school year. LI hosts several events that aim to inform students of the advantages of attending college, and other outreach efforts intended to help students get into college. Some of these include SAT Workshops, academic preparation and math and science-based academies, tutoring, campus tours, and UCSB student panels for younger students and their parents. Los Ingenieros, visit various high schools and junior high schools every year. In these visitations, UCSB students talk with pre-college students about the transition to college, financial aid, and what classes they should take to become eligible for university.

Assessment of project's success:

Participants will fill out an evaluation sheet after the program, which will include questions about what level of education they intend on pursuing, where they plan to attend, and what field they plan to pursue. In addition, the questionnaire will ask for opinions about what the attendees enjoyed the most and the least, and why. This provides us direct feedback from the attendees on areas that should be continued or expanded, and those in which we need to improve, as well as documenting comments on the immediate effectiveness of the program. We intend to provide all high school attendees with University Admission and Outreach Services Intake forms that will be turned in to the office of admissions. We will continue to join the Engineering Enrichment Center staff on school visitations weeks after the event and in the following school year in order to help maintain the motivation momentum and to assess the long-term effects of the program.
