Description: Marcus will offer participants a new approach to Disability Services. Central to Project Eye-To-Eye is the philosophy of asset-based community development. Rather than pathologizing a community and conceptualizing our work as part of a continuum of services, Project Eye-To-Eye believes first in identifying what is right with the LD/ADHD community and mapping assets, not needs, to be leveraged towards change. Marcus will offer an archetype for community empowerment that will allow participants to leave his presentation with a concrete action plan to implement within their own communities

Hello Pratish,

I am Juliana Ramirez on behalf of Born Again Ministries. We were allocated funds in April for our upcoming event. However we were wondering if we could receive a reallocation of those funds+ for the areas on our budget which we didn't receive funding for elsewhere. Can we be placed on the agenda for Monday under old business.

Description: The purpose of Native American Culture Week is to promote awareness about Native American students on campus and also the Native American culture, which many know little about, or have misconceptions about. As a research institution, it is important that students are given access to a wealth of knowledge about many cultures. Native American Culture Week gives the whole community of students and faculty at UC Santa Barbara an opportunity to learn about a culture that has low visibility at the University, and it also gives Native American students the opportunity to showcase their culture and pride in their heritage.
